To whom it may concern:

As a former Police Chief of three agencies, and a past President of the IACP (2016-2017), I believe that GILEE offers one of the best leadership development training programs globally. The inside look and hands on learning provides executives with a broader view of some of the best practices available to the police profession. As a result, the graduates have made many positive contributions to the law enforcement profession and the community they serve. On behalf of the IACP, my professional opinion of 33 years of service in law enforcement that we should thank GILEE for its steadfast support and contribution to our policing profession.
