To whom it may concern:

The Georgia International Law Enforcement Exchange (GILEE) has been a wonderful platform for providing unique training to law enforcement executives, corporate, and private sector senior security leaders for over 27 years. The greater Atlanta area agencies and corporations have hosted many of the various delegations participating in the programs, exchanging best practices for both public and private partnerships. Likewise, many senior executives from the Greater Atlanta area and surrounding States, from law enforcement and the private sectors, have participated in the GILEE programs. They have benefited greatly from the engagements with both their American counterparts, as well as the different international groups. One of the most interesting take-aways are how different countries approach crime prevention, enforcement measures, and anti-terrorism techniques, on both a local and international scale. Also revealing are how much they have in common, and the outcomes they seek. Our police and private sector leaders are much more informed as to new technologies and strategies of numerous foreign and domestic agencies as a result of the programs. Our various delegations have also been exposed to departments and everyday practices in countries that operate in a high threat environment, where their daily survival is at stake. We have observed the community support they need and receive to conduct their lives in a normal fashion. Nowhere else is this unique experience replicated. Our participating communities have benefited greatly from the GILEE programs.

Sincerely,
A.J. Robinson
President
